Huguenot Society of Florida Website Privacy Policy

Dear User

Privacy Policies are legally required around the globe to inform you, our user, of the information we collect, and do not collect when you visit our website. For websites which collect your data, processes it, and uses it substantially, posting the regulations and their compliance methods is critical. Below is all we need to post for us to comply.

We are the Huguenot Society of Florida, and we want you to visit our site. We want you to be an informed user and feel we are providing you full transparency. We use a hosting service and we are staffed by volunteers.

Our website host uses cookies (electronic tick marks) to track the number of times you visit our site. We can ask them to tell us when you visit our site. We do not need more information.

- We cannot see you, where you live, or your personnel/private information.
- We do not sell any information.
- All we want to know (1) are you new to our site or (2) are you a repeat visitor.

You can decline the cookie and still visit our site as many times as you like. Please visit often.

We use the information from the cookie to determine how our site performs in general and to try and increase the usefulness of the information we provide.

That's it.

For questions on this or any other Huguenot Society of Florida topic, please feel free to drop us a note via the Message to the President on our Huguenot Society of Florida Home Page.
